Established in 1989, Primex International Trading Corporation is a fourth generation grower and processor of pistachios as well as an international trader and exporter of dried fruits and nuts making it a vertically integrated company.

Primex takes title to the contracts, assures contract performance to its suppliers and is a reliable commodity source for its customers. Primex's mission is to provide unbiased, timely market information and reliable contracts with the highest level of integrity and service in its associations. Primex has affiliate offices around the world that allows it to understand the global market and move products efficiently. The staff of Primex speaks 19 languages.

In 1990, Primex started planting pistachio trees in Lost Hills, California. Currently Primex owns 1800 acres of prime pistachio orchards in Kern County. In 2005 and 2006 Primex added 2,400 acres of pistachio orchards in Madera County.

In 2002, Primex expanded its operations by building a new pistachio processing plant situated on 280 acres in the city of Wasco, California at an initial capacity of 20 million pounds. Primex Farms is built with the newest modular concept in plant design allowing ample room for expansion. It is the first in the industry to incorporate an environmentally "green" concept of recycling solid waste & water making it to be environmentally friendly, efficient and extremely clean. In 2006 Primex Farms capacity was increased to 48 million pounds to meet the ever increasing demand as new orchards come to production.

Primex is committed to highest standards in flavor, food safety and quality. In 2004, Primex has established its onsite HACCP and USDA certified laboratory programs alongside other quality control programs providing service to other tree nut processing plants.

Every year, Primex ships millions of pounds of products including pistachios, almonds, hazelnuts, walnuts, raisins, peanuts, apricots, and figs to all major markets throughout the world. The graph below illustrates Primex International Trading Corporation's continuous growth over the past five years.
